There are still many uncertainties about the Covid-19 pandemic. For example, experts are unsure yet why African and Caribbean community are so affected and whether robust immunity is gained after exposure to SARs-CoV-2 and for how long any possible immunity lasts.

Our group publishes a monthly newsletter called The Advocate. It is aimed to reassure and convince the Black community of the benefits of having the Covid-19 jab, promote Black communities, businesses, community events, and positive. The newsletter will share news that positively impacts our community, news about the Covid-19 pandemic and all positive information and direct messages from the government, NHS, local authorities and all relevant statutory agencies

We intend to print monthly free 100 copies of the newsletter for those who are facing digital poverty and exclusion. The difference it will make is that those facing isolation and loneliness will be able to connect with the local community and activities, including news of Covid-19 and the importance of taking the vaccine. Several readers have been requesting for print copies of the community newsletter but because of lack of funds and lockdown caused by the pandemic we were unable to provide printed copies.

We will print monthly 100 copies monthly to the community. We have a total of 300 people on our database who enjoy and benefit immensely from the digital copies of our newsletter.
